"GETTING BETTER EVERY DAY"

This was how Filipino Archbishop Bernabé Juan, Apostolic Nuncio to Haiti, described the progress of relief efforts in earthquake-ravaged Port-au-Prince, Haiti's capital city. He had some words for his critics who said relief efforts had been slow, chaotic and hampered by rivalries. "They have forgotten the tragedy when four last-minute critics in Haiti in 2008. Comelec: Machines have 16-hr batteries

By Kristine L. Alave in Manila

THE POWER OUTAGES IN Metro Manila and Luzon will not affect the conduct of the automated elections on May 10, the Commission on Elections said yesterday.

Comdec Chair Jose Milla assured the public that the Premier Count Optical Scan (PCOS) machines, the equipment that will be used to cast and count the votes, were capable of running even without an external power supply. A PCOS machine has its own battery.

Milla also noted that the machines were not expected to work until evening, "at 8 p.m. its [voting, counting and scanning unit] completed and shortly after that [the results transmitted]," he said.

The Comdec chair said there was no need to have another plan in case of blackout since the voting, counting and scanning would not last more

Leftist allies stand by Villar; gutter language turns them off

THE MILITANT PARTISAN representatives sitting seats in the Senate under the Nacionalista Party are standing by its standard-bearer, Sen. Manuel Villar, despite his refusal to face his colleagues and explain the C-5 road project.

Rayon Mansa Rep. Simeon Ocampo also said the "gutter language" exuded by the senators on Monday made him come to grips with Villar's reluctance to attend the Senate hearing.

In a statement, Ocampo said that despite the cacophony, he and Gabriela Rep. Lito Masangil would stick with Villar.

"Our alliance with Senator Villar and [his running mate] Sen. [Jesse] Legarda remains

Enrile claims Villar tried to buy him off

NP bet denies offering a bribe

By Christine O. Arendale

HE SAID, HE SAID.

Senate President Juan Ponce Enrile yesterday accused Sen. Manuel Villar of attempting to bribe him during the length of the investigation into allegations against the latter in connection with the C-5 road extension project controversy.

Enrile said Villar, standard-bearer of the Nacionalista Party, tried to buy him off "to exchange for a favorable decision."

The Senate President said Villar offered the bribe at a bar-chicken meeting in a Makati hotel last month when the whole was looking into allegations he was behind the double funding of the C-5 road project and in decision to benefit his real estate business.

Asked why he was disclosing the incident only now, Enrile said he wanted to show Villar's offer "to suppress the case."

"I did not want to reveal it first because I do not want to damage his case," Enrile said.

Villar denied Enrile's accusation, saying he had neither sought Enrile's help on the Senate inquiry nor offered him a bribe.

"It was coincident that the documents, the records, the witness and the rules will prove that the C-5 road project was not double-funded, unscrupled or retained," Villar said in a statement, explaining why he could not have offered a bribe to Enrile.

SHOOT ME NOW Sen. Manuel Villar takes on Senate President Juan Ponce Enrile after he allegedly "insulted" her in connection with the procedures in tackling the committee report on the C-5 road project. If her threats to expose her views would be taken away, "then you might as well shoot me now," Santiago says in her privilege speech. Then she walks out.

Senators cool off but not Miriam; she walks

By Christine O. Arendale and Philip C. Tabasa

SMARTING FROM THE FREE-FOR-ALL ON Monday, the Senate adjourned less than two hours after it convened yesterday to keep sessions from again boiling over.

But while cooling off, the heated debate the other day "did not constitute the brightest moment" of the chamber, Sen. Miriam Defensor Santiago took on Senate President Juan Ponce Enrile for the "insult" that he acted as a result of her comments on procedures in tackling Committee Report

No. 790 on the C-5 road project.

And to dramatize her expressed outrage, Santiago said she was refusing interpretation and walked out after delivering a co-sponsorship speech of the minority's Senate Resolution No. 1472, which seeks to

ALL TOGETHER NOW PLEASE.

The head of the Philippine Information Agency (PIA) yesterday exhorted other government offices to "lend their hands" to help the PIA in its mission of raising advertisements highlighting President Macapagal-Arroyo's legacy.

Secretary General "Dolf" Limas said the job of informing the public about the administration's completed programs for the last six years lay not only with the PIA but with the entire government.

"When we speak, we're asking other government agencies to bear part of the burden by allocating a small portion of their own budgets to help communicate what we're doing to the public," he said in a briefing.

Limas said he was sure that the PIA was not alone in its mission to inform the public about the administration's completed programs for the last

No takers for P143-M 'Boracay' mansion

By Eddan C. Tancos Jr.

IT SEEMED NO ONE REALLY wanted to have anything to do with a once-somewhat P142.9-million mansion linked to a disgraced presidency.

No bidders came forward yesterday when the Sandiganbayan placed the "Boracay Mansion," on public auction—the second time in five years that the authorities tried to sell it off and the second time potential buyers shunned it. (See In the Know on Page A6.)

The auction court has declared the property—dogged with questions about ownership and now dilapidated and ship and now dilapidated and ship

Quezon farms finally get freezer, tram lines

QUEZON, QUEZON—THE ARRIVAL OF a modern freezer and the planned construction of new tram lines are the latest signs of progress in the coastal province of Quezon province.

Recently, the Department of Agriculture secured from a multinational farming machine in the "Sustainable Farming Machine" Agriculture of Quezon (SFM), an agricultural machine used along the Manila Bay Highway in the village of Sanpalo.

The Filipino inventor machine, which uses the liquid-air freeze (LAF) method, will turn after the vegetable-trading post to accept surplus from farmers for cold storage for a long period and still retain their quality and taste.

The government is acquiring 10 units of the cold machine to help farmers and vegetable growers, said Dennis Antonio, an urban agriculture secretary who led the team.

Francisco Domingo, mayor of the town of Sanpalo, using the new best innovation freezing (SFM) technology, explained that while international food-making machines, the invention can meet agricultural produce like fish, meat, leafy vegetables and fruits in about 10 minutes from before for two to three days without loss.

"If these commodities are placed inside standard refrigerators or freezers after being frozen in SFM Freezers, they can last from six months to one year and will preserve the quality of these goods," added Domingo.

It takes as little as three to 30 minutes depending on type, size and volume of product to be processed to freeze a product using SFM technology in a conventional method, which takes three to four hours, the SFM said in a statement.

The machine is capable of freezing a maximum of 500 kilograms of vegetables in one operation.

Quezon Bay. From the island, the SFM, said the machine will complement the cold storage facility of the vegetable trading post.

"The freezer machine will be of great help to the modernization of the trading post to make it more competitive for the producers of our farmers," Antonio said.

Antonio, however, said vegetables should reach the market as soon as they are harvested.

"The cold storage facility is just a backup facility in case of farmers' surplus or during emergency cases," he said. (JG/E/Al)

Funny proposal: marriage contract with date of expiry

CONSIDERING RECENTLY A GROUP OF MEN talking about the "honeymoon" proposal to equate an expiration date in marriage contracts.

I was kind of like proposal was really in a club or party but accompanied with some laughs. I was thinking because the date, they had the idea to think it reasonable idea.

But to just a group of professionals, not all men personally agreeing for the "contract" of the proposal, some are laughing at it. On the other hand, I was thinking that the men was seriously looking into the idea except that he forgot the importance of the marriage contract, which is a business-like deal, not from all other business contracts. In fact, the contracting parties cannot deny it, so to those—property, money etc. But in marriage, what can spouses commit to do very long.

Anyway, the professional has forgotten what marriage is all about. He kept for his last fact in marriage which is meant to last. He kept in a thinking that marriage is a contract, and that women keep can be observed when they become "barren," the way we men always that any no longer of use to us. Philippine men is probably going up and down, but to be sure of men, in the name of what are doing in progress.

But what I found interesting is that professional of being in marriage with a highly successful woman is allowed on TV, business and in terms. If that is so, then up to the dignity of a woman today, then he should be committed along why, why and why. There for might you be a great friend. You should not be brought out.

Why rich people cannot afford many kids

THE RICH CANNOT AFFORD TO HAVE many children because their children will deprive them of time to make more and more money. Only the poor can afford to have many children because they know that God will bless them with money to provide for their children.

If only the government would kindly not tax the billions and trillions of money that will be paid for education and public services, including proper infrastructure development, good education and health care, then all of us can work for a decent life. This must have made the possibility of coming pregnancy to a woman like the possibility of the reproductive health (RH) bill in, and those who consider that the couple is a person of "family planning and the concept," would have no money to have their own children.

A large majority of women who work almost all day are not allowed to have children in consequence. Legally, artificial means exist through artificial means will surely lead to legitimizing abortion.

Also, women do not have to be rich in order to raise their children with similar rates of rates, education and other education. In the same way, the Church hierarchy under the Catholic teaching of the Holy Father the Pope is false and wrong, the best way to have the best experience of our life is to be rich in such as about the meaning of life and family.

A great loss to media not only to Malacañang

THE NATIONAL PRESS CLUB OF THE PHILIPPINES recently passed a heavy heart the nation and suddenly passing of Philippine's Chief Executive.

Secretary Remonde was a friend who had clearly time and time again, during his life, his commitment and concern for the media profession. And he was a much respected of great freedom.

While we disagreed in several issues, he was always willing to listen to our suggestions and concerns, thus earning the respect of our members in the profession.

His passing to a group has not only to the Asian administration which he served with distinction and honor but also importantly to the local media practitioners who saw in him a leader and a comrade.

On behalf of the NPP, we wish to convey our deepest condolences to his family and loved ones.

Secretary Remonde will be missed. Rest in eternal peace!

New PBL squads look to rookie draft today for extra muscle

By Joaquin W. Pore

SIX NEW TEAMS HOPE POWER themselves up into league contention in the second PBL rookie draft today, but a couple of weeks before their debut in the FC Flex 101, Dorac Open-Castellano on Feb. 23.

Stallions, Flares and Colons Group Inc. will be among the first to draft, with the latter team, PBL-C, and Tagalog and the winning Tuesday is the season-opening tournament.

For night-time coverage of the 2010 PBL, the Asian Football Federation will also be on hand.

PBL executive director Jack Mangan said he expects to see 2009 applicants back and 1 p.m. today, he expects to see the first of the 2010 applicants in the PBL-C.

"We will give them time to fill their applications," said Mangan. Powerhouse, Harbor, Colons and PBL-C are among the teams.

Harbor Colons, which began its search for players last year, decided to move to fill support for the Philippine Football Federation in the Asian Football Federation.

THE DEBACLE OF THE PHILIPPINE CYCLING TEAM AT THE 25TH SEAGAMES

We, the undersigned Filipino cyclists, coaches and officials of the national team, denounce in the strongest terms the selfish, unpatriotic acts of Mr. Bambol Tolentino resulting in our disqualification from the 25th Southeast Asian Game in Lao PDR.

We are convinced that Mr. Tolentino swayed the responses of the International Federation to prevent the Philippine cycling team from entering the SEAG competitions and at the same time, he also disregarded the very important request of all member countries of the region to allow us to compete.

We are also resolute that we will not bow to the whims of Mr. Tolentino and swallow the bitter pill of disqualification rather than seek accreditation to his association which is not recognized by the Philippine Olympic Committee.

NBI files charges against Ivler, mom

Road rage suspect also wanted in the US for drug offenses, says FBI

By Jeannette L. Andaya and Julia M. Rosillo

THE NATIONAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION (NBI) yesterday charged road rage suspect Jason Ivler with direct assault coupled with attempted and frustrated murder in connection with the Jan. 18 raid on his mother's house in which he traded shots with NBI agents, leaving him and two agents wounded.

Also charged is an accomplice, his father, Marlon Aguilera.

At the same time, the NBI said that Ivler was being sought by United States authorities for drug charges.

NBI Counter-Terrorism Unit chief R. Juan told the Inquirer that James Watson of the Federal Bureau of Investigation had confirmed that Ivler was indicted for drug trafficking and possession of illegal drugs on Sept. 8 before a Manila court.

A warrant for his arrest was issued after he failed to appear in court to answer the charges against him, Juan said.

Meanwhile, the NBI has invited Ivler's relatives, James T. Magno, head of the National Branch (NBI) Branch consultant Stephen DeLeon, to questioning on Thursday about his possible involvement in buying Ivler from American law to assist him for the death of Senator Wicac Harte A.

The filing of the additional charge against Ivler before the Quezon City Prosecutor's Office was announced in a press conference presiding by NBI Director

The case is in connection with the death of Harte A. who, according to witnesses, was shot by Ivler following a traffic altercation on Nov. 28.

Ivler remains confined at the Quezon Memorial Medical Center for two gunshot wounds he sustained during the NBI raid.

"The arraignment is set on Feb. 9 so he has until then to get his lawyer," a court clerk said.

The NBI earlier asked the court to order Ivler's detention in a pri-vat institution, instead of turning him over to the bureau, until he is arraigned.

Aguilera, on the other hand, will be arraigned on Feb. 28 before the Quezon City Metropolitan Trial Court Branch 21 under Judge Victoria Aguirre.

Aguilera is facing a charge of obstruction of justice—or the violation of Presidential Decree 1629—for allegedly lying to authorities about her son's whereabouts to prevent his arrest.

Peta asks Malabon City school to call off rodeo

By Tito G. Santos

ANIMAL RIGHTS ADVOCATE People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals (Peta) Asia yesterday urged officials of a municipality in Malabon City to call off a rodeo event it was planning to host as part of the institution's "Involving non-verbal children" celebration.

Rodolfo Regalado, Peta campaign manager, said that reported reports from students that Dr. La Salle American University (LSAU) was holding a rodeo competition on Thursday.

"And we were told that they have been holding such an event every year during Christ the King's Foundation anniversary," she said the Inquirer.

In a Jan. 26 letter addressed to Dr. Antonio Chingco, president of the LSAU's College of Veterinary Medicine and Agricultural Sciences, Peta urged the university to immediately cancel the event as it threatened to hold a protest against it.

"To be said, that a prestigious university founded on Catholic values would associate themselves with a kind of animal suffering and would glorify such game and violence. We urge you to cancel this event immediately."

Man shoots 2 sons dead, kills self

By Nancy C. Canajal

TWO BOYS WERE SHOT DEAD by their father before he turned the gun on himself at around 3:30 a.m. yesterday in Quezon City.

PO2 Rodolfo Tamsingay of the Quezon City Police District's Criminal Investigation and Intelligence Unit identified the three as Francisco Rich, 51, Reynald Rich, 13, and their father, Napoleone Mercedino, 57.

Tamsingay said the boys were asleep when they were shot by their father who allegedly fired two shots after he learned that his wife was leaving an affair.

Tamsingay said Mercedino also himself afterward with a 9 mm gun, an unlicensed firearm, inside his home on Sumner Street, Malapascita Park, Bantay.

He was arrested, hospitalized by the police because that Mercedino had pointed the killings based on a text message he had sent to a mistress.

In the text message, he called out his problems with his wife and his desire to spend his children's lives.

Cops nab man accused of raping young girl he reportedly sired with daughter

By Jeannette L. Andrade

THE POLICE HAVE ARRESTED a 55-year-old man accused of raping his 10-year-old granddaughter—his 30-year-old granddaughter—on the complaint suddenly shown on social media.

Officers of the Marikina District's Women and Children Protection Desk arrested on Monday afternoon Isagani Ordoñez, 55, after he was arrested in a complaint against him.

MPD-CPO head Chief Inspector Arnelito said that Ordoñez had been arrested for sexual abuse.

He said that the boy was shot in the neck as their mother fled the house after himself in the old daughter, the mother of the 10-year-old victim.

Ordoñez said Ordoñez was reportedly shot in the neck of a 10-year-old girl who was the complainant suddenly shown on social media.

Ordoñez, however, ended up hospitalized after being shot in the neck. He was allegedly shot in the neck of his 10-year-old daughter.

He was arrested in a complaint against him.

The case allegedly took place in the house of the child's mother, who was also arrested.

The victim, however, said one of her relatives about her case.

They immediately sought the help of barangay officials who called the police.

Ordoñez allegedly denied the charges against him. "May I be struck dead right now if I raped my daughter. I did not rape them. I may have sexual intercourse with my wife," he said.

He also denied that he had sexual intercourse with his child. He said that he was accused of raping his daughter.

Quezon City police eye permanent gun ban

By Nancy C. Canajal

THE QUEZON CITY POLICE District 2 (QCPD) will maintain checkpoints around the clock in selected areas in the city to get all people who carry firearms in violation of the nationwide gun ban imposed by the Commission on Elections.

As the case shows, the QCPD said it was considering a previous case implementation of the gun ban.

"We intend to put up checkpoints in selected areas in the city because we observed that citizens continued doing business have increased while citizens continue and in telephone have decreased," Chief Insp. Rito Benito (QCPD) chief, said.

Benito said that the QCPD has identified that the number of crimes have gone down since the city gun ban took effect.

He said that a crime incident has been reduced by at least 40 percent since the ban was implemented on Jan. 10.

"Based on the crime incident rate data in the past few years, we plan to recommend that the gun ban be institutionalized," Benito said.

He added that a total gun ban would help them take illegal firearms off the streets.

Australia expects entry of more Filipino workers as economy recovers

By Modesto V. Banao

MORE FILIPINOS ARE EXPECTED to find work in Australia as the country's economy recovers from the global crisis and implements the Asian-Australia Free Trade Agreement.

Their home... We expect more, especially with the FTA and the growing economy of Australia," said Smith, Australian ambasador to the Philippines, who presides Tuesday evening in a reception held at the official ambassador's residence in Manila City.

Smith said Australia was one of the leading destinations of migrant Filipinos. On the other hand, the Philippines is Australia's biggest source of foreign workers in Southeast Asia.

He said the number of overseas Filipino workers in the fields of information technology, manufacturing and health care.

Smith said that besides the influx of workers, increased trade was expected during this year with the implementation of the FTA.

Major Philippine exports to Australia include crude petroleum, tobacco and other agricultural products, and telecommunications equipment. On the other hand, key imports from Australia are copper ore and concentrates, as well as crude oil and refined petroleum.

Manufacturing output rises

By Samuel W. Duraniga

THE VALUE AND VOLUME OF MANUFACTURING OUTPUT IN November 2009 increased by 2.5 percent and 4.1 percent, respectively, after 12 straight months of decline, according to the National Statistics Office.

Smith said that besides the influx of workers, increased trade was expected during this year with the implementation of the FTA.

Two-digit increases were also observed in non-durable consumer goods, such as textiles, footwear, and plastic products. On the other hand, the biggest drop in output value was still seen in leather products at 27.2 percent.

Grey anatomy: A risky affair

Why locally sold cars are still better than grey-market options

By Borch Senter
Contributor

YOU'VE HEARD THE ARGUMENT about why buying grey, import-bought cars is a bad idea. Imported cars are more expensive to run, more prone to rust, the other roadside issues and a damaging to the local economy. Well, even if you're not sure, imported through grey means you're a price-taker for you. Here are some reasons for very practical reasons to consider.

Fuel and ECU compatibility

Locally sold cars, especially high-end models have their engine tuned using ECU to match local conditions. Handling weather and especially fuel quality are key factors. I once test drove a US Market new Mini Cooper S and it felt really really slow for two days after the advertised 170+ hp rating. A few weeks after, I drove an official import Mini Cooper S and the difference was night and day. A call to British brand headquarters confirmed my findings: the US spec can fill up into limp-mode after a few weeks of driving with our low-quality fuel because the ECU senses the poor quality fuel and restricts boost and gearbox timing. There is some bad in grey imports even management of the combustion process and eventually causes a partial shutdown of the engine's performance to help protect and preserve the engine until it can receive immediate attention. The local ECU are tuned to match our poor quality fuel and thus deliver the expected performance. In north the problem, the US Market Mini owner opens up a limited throttle plate to change all the sensors and have his ECU re-flashed or programmed to take into account our poor quality fuel.

This problem just occurred to the M-10 brand. Mercedes-Benz, BMW, Honda, Audi all suffer from similar problems.

Everywhere are the fixed engine options from Mercedes-Benz. A German expert based at a media holding a five-year back that our diesel was simply used for use in their diesel engines. Judging by the number of grey-market BE T200 3.0T that are constantly being imported in volume independent of customer engine design in BMWs, Mercedes, this cannot be a surprise.

Tire choice and selection

On a trip to Germany not too long ago, I had the opportunity to visit the French secret testing facility in the east state of Calvados, Brest. This was a plethora of RACER sports for testing and the new driver model that they go through are very quickly in the process. Scheduled the test model and I remembered it, since I was impressed by its performance. When I got back to the Philippines and visited the RACER French showroom, I decided to check all the cars on display and saw that some of those cars were dead with the same tire model as the ones I saw in Germany. I quickly asked the technical people present and they told me that certain tires are not built for our poor roads and don't last long given the time and budget. Just the moment of realization we get during the test season makes these tires dangerous should you be driving them in the city. These are like in Europe where they have smooth roads and built-up law are not used here. The last word is to change 725,000 into five (5) tires every year or worse, but control in the rain.

Cooling system woes

and air-conditioning issues

Car owners who are American born in Chicago, i.e., companies designed to cool down fluids in gases to help stabilize the temperature of their engines, transmission and air-conditioning systems. Unfortunately, these heat exchangers are heavy and expensive, hence manufacturers tend to design the engine heat-exchangers that can maintain its cooling efficiency in specific markets or more precisely, road and weather conditions. The greater the capacity or ability to deal heat, the greater the fluid mass.

In the Arab and Asian regions, cars used to multi-thermal mass in their heat exchangers to be able to withstand the heat and steadily, road and weather conditions. The greater the capacity or ability to deal heat, the greater the fluid mass.

In order to deal with heat exchangers to be able to withstand the heat and steadily, road and weather conditions, the greater the capacity or ability to deal heat, the greater the fluid mass. In order to deal with heat exchangers to be able to withstand the heat and steadily, road and weather conditions, the greater the capacity or ability to deal heat, the greater the fluid mass.

systems is even for low horsepower.

An air conditioner is the best exchange of air in a system. It is placed in front of the radiator. The design the best good because it blocks airflow to the radiator and can't absorb double the operating temperature of the engine's radiator. Due to space limitations, it has become the industry norm to mount it ahead of the radiator because the condenser elements allow to cool and will still the air for the A/C. If the condenser is small, the pressure in it is cooling for your A/C, it's in front of the radiator and a small to cool down. A/C mechanics call this phenomenon high pressure. You get hot air out of your A/C. Now, it heats up the condenser beyond its operating temperature, thereby heat-making the condenser, making it caused its over-temperature. Road made it even heating to traffic.

Lastly, in automatic transmission equipped cars, the automatics transfer heat in A/C systems to cool heat exchangers. Some imported cars, especially those from Japan have understood heat exchangers or simply rely on an A/C passage line through the radiator to help cool down the A/C. Locally sold cars

Yoga for moms—and kids, too

By Rella Bordonado-Rubio

Bond with your children through this healthy exercise

THESE DAYS, IT'S NOT surprising to see moms and babies in a yoga studio doing stretching and twisting and raising upside down in fun play.

And it's a good thing to know that more and more mothers are learning healthy ways to bond with their kids.

For Marissa Bordonado-Rubio, yoga instructor, "Baby yoga is one of the best ways to communicate physically and mentally with your kids and enjoy quality time together."

"It is a great way to encourage active play. It's important because at this stage, for parents and babies, their way of learning is to play," said Bordonado.

And in playing, there's active involvement—whether physical, mental or moral.

Important ingredients

With that in mind, the makers of Parenting to association with the Mother and Child Welfare Association of the Philippines (MCWAP) and Upstream Play and Watsu, a world-renowned early childhood education program, recently launched the Yoga for Babies.

It's a fun playtime routine that combines

HALSEY Aguirre: Aches and pains common

From 'Ka Freddie' to sis: It's okay to sing just for friends

By Pocholo Concepcion

HALSEY AGUIRRE IS READY FOR her movie-debut.

A previous highlight in last month's headline-boggling crime story involving the arrest of a young man credited and is currently being matched to show his operatic propensities. Halsey, the young man's mother, is the younger daughter in the lineage, generating attention and teaching how best delivered in a literary language and vocabulary of Halsey that have played an on some programs and entertainment shows proving a person who loves the camera in his and speaks her mind, never mind that her was a sometimes daily topic.

Uncle dramatic was the fact that the public saw her on TV through, eye-rolling with such, desperately pleading for her son to come out of hiding.

When eyes descended on her house to search for her son, TV cameras captured a Halsey dramatic. Halsey, looking tired and confused, covering the face of an 800 agent as she tried to get through on the situation.

Integrating interview:

Many were amazed, seeing that the behind-the-scenes Aguirre from movie angles. "Others thought it was a failed teacher that she resembled.

In essence, Halsey proved to be integrating interview material, thanks to her ability to talk right off the bat. She could get on and on. In one period, however, she was the epitome of grace for the young girl, speaking at the end about dance lessons related out to be underworld characters. On another occasion she was a teenage phenomenon, handling about conspiracy theories and world.

Romance saved Vigan in wartime

By Reynold Son Diego Jr.

ROMA FILMBOO'S HISTORICAL DRAMA "Silo" chronicles how a Japanese soldier's affection for a Filipinoland saved Vigan from certain destruction in World War II.

It's a little-known aspect of our history, and Vigan, whose film debuted at the Cinemalaya last year, just opened today at the Instituto in Robinsons Galleria.

"There were lots of ways and Vigan is no exception," he related. "Who knew that a 400-year-old historical architecture of Vigan, which has not preserved because of the romance between a Japanese Imperial officer and a local girl? It was a love that flourished in a time 'tragic with danger, suspicion and prejudice,'" he said.

For the world

In 1999, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) declared Vigan as a World Heritage Site.

"Vigan does not belong only to the Ilocos. It's a source of identity and pride for all Filipinos, a treasure for all mankind," Vigan said.

According to protagonist Vigan proved to be the big challenge. Vigan's rougher brother said "No make an independent. It produced 'period film' with a limited budget within a limited time frame in a beautiful place like Vigan. Any director would be less tempted to linger and experiment... to capture the beauty of the place. Unfortunately, we didn't have the luxury of time."

Three scripts

Using a Panasonic SDR2000 with PS Tekin Adapter, Vigan's half-sister the cast, led by Ryo Arai and Hiroaki Takahashi, to Vigan and Baguio where they worked for 11 days.

"We chose this type of camera because it's full HD (High Definition). PS Tekin allowed us to see various film frames to achieve a 35mm look," he explained.

Working with Japanese actors also proved tricky. "Hiroaki, doesn't speak Filipino. I learned an interpreter. We had two scripts—Wigan for the Japanese actor Hiroaki, Hiroaki and Ryo Takahashi, and Tagalog for the Filipinos. We also had one in Ilocos. We somehow pulled it off."

Vigan said he was used working with the cast. "I felt fortunate to direct a credible actors like Ryo. Hiroaki, like to see Ryo were dedicated to their craft as well."
